Monday 29 October 2018 National CAT DAY ! MEOW!

National Cat Day seeks to raise awareness of the thousands of cats that need to be rescued and encourages appreciation of pet cats. In 2005, National Cat Day created by Colleen Paige, a pet lover and advocate. NCD also advocates spaying and neutering cats in order to control their ever-growing population worldwide.

Waldon Pond PET CEMETERY for Family History research
7965 Market Street, Wilmington, North Carolina 28411. Waldon Pond Pet Cemetery opened in 1990. The pet cemetery holds 241 graves and 81 plot owners. On some of the pet graves are the dates of the dearly departed and their owner's names. Adding a bit more to the descriptive pieces of your ancestor's lives.

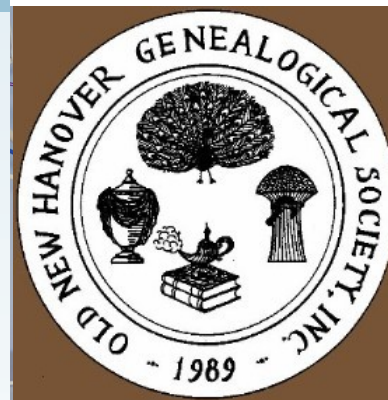

Walden Pond Pet Cemetery no longer accepts any burials at this time. Those with pets buried there now have the peace of mind that their resting places will remain undisturbed, and can be visited as they had in the past.

Friends of Felines a 501(c)3 non-profit published newsletters through the 1990s to 2011 that contain memorials of beloved pet's deaths and their people's names. NHCPL holds most of the newsletters in the North Carolina Room collection.

Gray Gables Cat Cemetery on Gray Gables Lane near Wrightsville Sound, a private residence now, once owned by the Pearsall family. The family bought the property circa 1890 and Gray Gables remained in their possession until the last family owner Martin Whitfield Pearsall (1902-1967) died. Fourteen cat headstones line a brick path.
