[To be continued.]

The three Clemmons men listed above were all residing in Brunswick County when they enlisted in Company G, 36th Regiment, North Carolina Troops. This battery, known as "Lamb Artillery," was mustered in at Fort St. Philip on May 5, 1862. They were soon transferred to Fort Caswell and eventually saw some action near Savannah, Georgia. They arrived at Fort Fisher on January 2, 1865 just in time for the battle 13 days later. All three were captured. Edward (age 37 when he enlisted) was sent to Elmira prison where he was paroled for exchange on March 2, 1865. Four days later he was hospitalized in Richmond, Virginia. He made it back to Southeastern, North Carolina. Thomas (age 21 when he enlisted, and possibly the brother of Edward) was also sent to Elmira. He was released on 11 July 1865 and made it home. George Clemmons (age 35 when he enlisted) was not as fortunate. He died of pneumonia at Elmira on 24 April 1865.

The Council Family and the Town of Wananish, N.C.

Wananish, N.C. April 5, 1905. This village on the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, Columbus County, and by beautiful Lake Waccamaw, is progressing like other lovely regions in North Carolina, and the improvements in contemplation will cause expenditures of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Waccamaw Land and Lumber Company having secured 225,000 acres, are building a railway going to a southerly direction, then turning westward to Wilmington.

E. Nelson, of Detroit, Mich., the president of the company, is a great developer, and has cement interests in California, as well as large interests indifferent states. At Wilmington, the company is building a band saw mill with capacity of 50,000 feet of lumber per day, and dry kiln capacity of 60,000 feet, the mill to be running in May.

J.P. Council has sold an option on 4,000 acres, and Dr. J.R. Jackson on 1,500 acres, all near Wananish, to an improvement company, who have promised to expend $250,000 in development.

The Council Tool Company, of Wananish, will become a corporation, capital $100,000 and J.P. Council has sold an interest in his works to members of the Consolidated Naval Stores Company and the Wananish enterprise will become a veritable monopoly, protected by the Council patented inventions. In manufacturing tools and implements for turpentine operations the output now reaches $100,000 a year, and is another illustration of the axiom that "from small acorns great oaks grow." Where J.P. Council was born is now named Council Station in Bladen County, but there is no railway there.

On the farm he started a little blacksmith shop, added a carriage building, and drifted into making edged tools. The business grew, and he invented machinery and took boys from the farms and trained them to mechanism - they are men now and with him yet. Four years ago he moved to Wananish, choosing it as a very healthy, as well as beautiful location. There he built pretty cottages, plastered in and painted out, for the employees who have their homes free of rent. The factory built of brick measures 35x180 feet and could not be better lighted and ventilated. The machinery includes engine of 50 and boiler of 60 horse power, 22 forges, power hammers, the Council patented machines, which no other works have, and there are exhaust fans for dust, sparks, etc., making it a model establishment. Thirty-five mechanics are at present employed, and the manufacture is shipped over the United States and Mexico, wherever the turpentine industry is.

By the A.C.L. track is the handsome Council Mercantile house ($10,000 stock) and offices, post office and long distance telephones. A broad carriage way leads past tool works, and comely cottages, and the Council plantation, with fields as level as floor, in berries, asparagus, potatoes and other epicurean delights.

Trim barns, and paddocks, and wire fences cause admiration and then the big white modern Council home, like a hotel, stands "monarch of all it surveys," the plantation backed by the many hued foliage of forestry, and fronted by 600 feet of pier, reaching out into the placid and beautiful Lake Waccamaw, which is seven miles long and five miles wide.

The Indian name of Wananish is Ouananich, signifying, Land Locked Salmon, and as formerly it is a fisherman's Mecca. A few mornings ago Mr. Council went to the lake to fish for bait, then for fish, and came back with 45 pounds of bass and crappies before dinner time.

At Council, on the Seaboard Railway, he has control of about 10,000 acres, and there has a game preserve, and usually he invites friends to a hunting party at Thanksgiving. His last party killed 16 deer and other game. Twenty years ago deer became scarce, and Mr. Council got his neighbors to agree not to kill any for five years, the result of which was that the increase from one doe and her offspring was 25 to 30 deer in five years, and quail, squirrels and turkeys also reward the nimrods.

The Council boys with athletic love for sport are diligent in other applications, and J.P. Council, their father has every reason to be proud of them. Jesse K. Council, 17 years of age, "is running the farm" at Wananish and cleared $1,600 last year. K. Clyde Council is running the edge tool works by fire and forge. James R. Council, the great football player, has proven a diligent student at the University of Virginia, and E.B. Council, with a good head on young shoulders, is postmaster and mercantile manager at Wananish. They "get there" when it comes to business or sport.

Facing the lake and within flagging distance of the Council home, A.L. Smalley, of Plainfield, New Jersey, is completing an elegant $7,000 residence with lovely level fields reaching back to the woods, and J. Sam Wright, of Boardman, N.C., has bought 40 acres from Mr. Council and is planning an Idyllic home, which that great lumberman is thoroughly capable of accomplishing. With the lake, the plantations, and woods, and eight flowing artesian wells, Wananish is lovely now, but see it developed. A side track on the north side of the A.C.L. leads to the Sears & Lloyd (of Wilmington) Wananish mills, which were started last year by S.P. Taylor & Company. Messrs. Sears and Lloyd are making improvements. They have five miles narrow gauge railway, a locomotive and seven cars, and are putting a trestle across a swamp 3 ½ miles from the mill at Wananish, and are building a grain building 16x32 feet, and to machinery will add another boiler, put in steam feed and live rolls and dust chains. The capacity of the mill is 188,000 feet of lumber per day, and they have about 25,000,000 feet of long and short leaf yellow pine. They ship to the West Indies via Wilmington, and kiln dried boards to the Hannah Box Co., of Wilmington. At the mill they have stabling for 14 head, and several cottages, the superintendent's house being a model of excellent arrangement and the fire protection should please the insurance folks, as the steam pump and hose and buckets and barrels are handy to every part of the plant. B.F. Norfleet, the superintendent of the mills and woods, is not only a worker but exercises superior intelligence. He went into the lumber business when 16, and climbed to the University of Virginia, where he studied two years, and went back to the Camp Manufacturing Co., of Franklin, Va., and was with them 10 years, and has been severally with Minter, of Norfolk, manager therefore at Petersburg, and with the Roanoke Railroad and Lumber Company - Cape Fear, also the Angola Lumber Company, and is a thoroughly equipped lumberman and genial gentleman.

Mrs. Norfleet, who is a Virginia lady, is in love with this country, as well as with Mr. Norfleet, and young Miss Norfleet, a 16 months' Carolina girl. She has constant music at her Wananish home, as she has bronze turkeys, and ducks and geese, and Plymouth Rocks and a that.

[According to William S. Powell's The North Carolina Gazetteer, A Dictionary of Tar Heel Places, Wananish was located in northern Columbus County. It was never incorporated, and is now part of the town of Lake Waccamaw. Also, according to The North Carolina Post Office Catalog, by Johnnie Johnson, the first post office was established in Wananish in 1899 and discontinued in 1972. Joseph L. Nicholson was the first postmaster. This description of Wananish, submitted by Bill Reaves, was taken from the Semi-Weekly Messenger, April 11, 1905.]

NEW HANOVER COUNTY DEED BOOK "D"

[Many of New Hanover County's earliest records have been destroyed by courthouse fires. What was left of the first two deed books, A and B, was combined to form book AB, which was abstracted by Mae Graves many years ago. Deed Book C was published in the Courier from 1993 to 1996. Here begins a series of abstracts from Deed Book D. New Hanover County was formed in 1729 from Craven County. Bladen and Onslow Counties were formed from New Hanover in 1734, Duplin County in 1750, Brunswick County in 1764, part of New Hanover was annexed to Sampson county in 1795, and Pender County, last but not least, broke away in 1875. The following abstract of Deed Book D, which covers many records for these areas, was compiled by Ida Brooks Kellam in 1939.]

Compugenics by Gerald McKenzie

Well, the last of the Computer Special Interest Group meetings until September have been completed. Judging by the attendance and comments received, the effort seemed to be a great success. We averaged twelve people per meeting with a high of twenty-one and a low of eight. The same agenda sequence will begin again in September.

There appears to be a great deal of activity in the world of computer aided genealogy. I note the release of several new CD-ROMs. FTM by Broderbund has two new World Family Trees out (#7 & #8); Complete Book of Emigrants (CD #350); GenRef Inc. has released the Early American Gazetteer (see page 6 of Genealogical Computing-Spring 97 Issue). Corel has released a whole new line of genealogical software. Most of the preceding have been reviewed in Everton's Genealogical Helper or Heritage Magazine or Genealogical Computing. If you do not subscribe to any of these magazines I urge you to request your local library (history-genealogical section) to do so.

In the last issue of the Clarendon Courier the E Mail address of the Old New Hanover Genealogical Society was listed as: ONHGEN@Wilm.net and as many of you now know this is incorrect. The correct E Mail is: ONHGEN@Wilmington.Net. The society is still sorting out exactly what function(s) will be served by E Mail and what the future role of the web site will be. Please be patient as this is a whole new venture for us and we want to do it right.

It is very apparent that the hobby(?) called genealogy is undergoing major changes due to the infusion of the latest technologies spawned in the world of computers. The CD ROMs mentioned earlier are providing massive databases that can be searched with ease. We are seeing marriage indices, census records, vital records, historical "registers" and all sorts of compilations of data being put on CD ROMs. Most libraries now have one or more computers in their local history and genealogy rooms providing access to these massive databases. One CD ROM contains over 500 million bytes which is the equivalent of 250,000 pages of text.

With the advent of low price scanners and fantastic editing software old photographs can be scanned, cosmetically edited to fix blemishes and flaws, and then imported into most genealogical software. Not only can we now print out all manner of charts, we can have our ancestor's pictures included in the chart. Fragile documents can be scanned into a format that is virtually indestructible and can be sent by mail on a floppy disk or by Email to anyone. What an exciting time it is to be infected by that wonderful and demanding disease called genealogicalitis.

At our next to last meeting we discussed genealogical publishing. Again the computer offers an indispensable aid to the user. There are the obvious word processors to handle the layout and text, but beyond that there are a myriad of specialty programs which index, provide aid in writing biographies, compile descendant or ancestor reports that read like a book and programs which will even mate photographs, narrative and text into a well woven story that can be "played" by a computer. There are several word processor type programs dedicated to the composition of genealogies and family histories providing all sorts of prompts as to how to do it. These programs create extensive charts based on data as well as a detailed index of names and places identified in the text.

One thing above all others is apparent in our Special Interest Group: the sharing of tips, ideas and discoveries of new releases is by far and away the best way to become aware of what is available in the market today. I urge you out of towners to form your own local Special Interest Group! The benefits are fantastic. In our local group we have compiled a database of our members, telephone & E Mail numbers, what equipment and software each person has and a limited listing of literature and other database holdings providing a local contact to share either data or in problem resolution. It works Well!
