CEMETERY RECORDS

by Ann Hutteman

Cemeteries are gold mines for the genealogist, especially for those researching family members who were born or died before 1913, when North Carolina began keeping vital statistics. In urban areas, there are two types of cemetery records: gravestone and those of the office or church which maintained the cemetery. For example, Oakdale Cemetery, which is Wilmington's largest, has been keeping official files of interments since 1855. Sometimes, the dates do not agree. One of the dates may refer to the date of interment rather than the date of death. Also, for one reason or another, some interments may not be listed in the official files, but a gravestone is erected on the cemetery lot. The Confederate spy, Rose O'Neal Greenhow, who drowned near Fort Fisher in 1864, does not have a card in the Oakdale office. But she is buried there; a handsome tombstone erected by the Ladies Memorial Association marks the grave.

Finding the cemetery where your ancestor is buried can be an adventure. The obituary in the newspaper will often give the final resting place of the departed. However, if you do not know the exact date of death, searching for the obituary is like looking for a needle in a haystack. Another important avenue of investigation should be the church the deceased attended. The church registry may have the cemetery listed, along with the date of the funeral. Many small churches had burial grounds nearby. In rural areas, the place of residence should be checked, as some families may have had graveyards on their property.

If you have struck out completely, it might be well to find a son, daughter, brother, sister of the person sought, who died after 1913. After that date, death certificates listed the place of interment. As is true today, families tended to be buried together on the same lot or in the same cemetery. Local funeral homes date from the last decades of the nineteenth century and they may furnish valuable information.

There are a number of books of gravestone records in the North Carolina Room of the New Hanover Public Library, which cover counties all over the state. Billie McEachern, Ida Brooks Kellam, Jeanette St. Amand, Crockette Hewlett and R. V. Asbury are just five of the local historians who diligently copied tombstone records during the twentieth century and mimeographed copies for the library. Our society has an excellent series of Onslow County gravestone records by Mike Whaley and Oakdale Cemetery Records, Vols. I-V, 1855-1988, abstracted by Delmas D. Haskett, which are both available for sale.

Chances are that some members of your family are buried in remote rural cemeteries. Up until the mid-twentieth century, most people were interred within five miles of their homes. Deeds can be helpful in pinpointing the location of the family residence; therefore a map of the area is a must. If possible, get explicit directions to the cemetery before leaving home.

Before you start your trek, it is well to gather supplies for a "cemetery kit." Many of the country graveyards are unkept and located in woods, with thick undergrowth. You should wear some protective clothing, such as blue jeans, work pants or a flannel shirt. A wide-brim hat and good walking shoes or boots will protect you from the sun and briars and brambles that may be in your path.

Your kit should include drinking water, snack foods, garden gloves and first aid supplies. A good sun screen and insect repellent are very useful. Beware of poison ivy or oak and watch where you step. Fire ants and other creepy crawlies are some of the worst menaces in an overgrown area. Garden tools, such as a small shovel and a hand held hoe, may come in handy to clear grass and debris from around stones. In areas of very dense vegetation, a machete may be necessary.

Photographs of the gravestones will be a good addition to your records, but always write the information down, because photographs sometimes do not pickup all the inscriptions. You may want to take a rubbing of the lettering.

Before you leave the graveyard, look around to see if there are other families buried there. In very remote cemeteries, it may be well to copy those inscriptions. Who knows after further research, the other surnames may be connected to your ancestors. You should also record any other writing and inscriptions, not just the obvious birth and death dates. Sometimes, the names of the parents of the deceased or a second husband or wife are listed on the stone. You may just find an interesting or amusing epitaph.

NEW HANOVER COUNTY DEED BOOK "D"

[Many of New Hanover Count's earliest records were destroyed by courthouse fires. What was left of the county's first two deed books, A and B, was combined to form AB. This book was abstracted many years ago by Mae Blake Graves. Deed Book C was published in the Courier from 1992 to 1996. This series of abstracts from Deed Book D began in the Summer 1997 issue of the Courier. New Hanover was formed in 1729 from Craven County. Bladen and Onslow counties were formed from New Hanover in 1734, Duplin County in 1750, Brunswick County in 1764, part of New Hanover was annexed to Sampson County in 1795, and Pender County, last but not least, broke away from New Hanover in 1875. The following abstract of Deed Book D, which covers many early records from the above counties, was compiled by Ida Brooks Kellam in 1939 and 1940.1

THE BILL REAVES COLLECTION

The Bill Reaves Collection in the New Hanover County Public Library is a very valuable resource for area genealogists. Recently, there have been a number of requests for an up-dated list of all the family files contained in the collection. A portion of that list is published here and will be continued in the next Courier.

If you want a copy of one of these files send a request with a self-addressed-stamped envelope to the North Carolina Room, New Hanover County Public Library, 201 Chestnut Street, Wilmington, NC 28401. The library staff will inform you of the number of pages and the cost of sending the file (15 cents per page plus postage). MORE SOCIETY NOTES

The Annual Picnic was held on Saturday, May 6, 2000, at Moore's Creek Battleground in Pender County. It was a beautiful day, with about forty people in attendance, who enjoyed delicious barbecue and all the trimmings! Diane Cashman, local author and historian, gave a talk, entitled, "Way Back When." She told about everyday life of our ancestors in the Colonial period and how the diet, clothing and work of the early settlers differed from that of today. Diane, thank you for an amusing and interesting presentation.

Church of Saint Thomas The Apostle
Combined Register of Baptisms, Marriages and Deaths

Rev. Thomas Murphy, appointed January 1, 1845 by the Bishop of the Diocese of Charleston, was the first full time priest in Wilmington. Murphy superintended the construction of the Gothic Revival style St. Thomas Church, dedicated and opened for worship on July 18, 1847, continuing Wilmington's longtime Roman Catholic history.

This is the sixth in a series of St. Thomas Ap: records transcribed in full by Joseph Sheppard. These registers, taken from microfilm housed in the New Hanover Public Library, contain six volumes dating from 1845 to 1968. Baptisms list the child or adult by name, parents (P.P.), sponsors (S.S.), and officiator. Marriages include the groom and bride, witnesses (W.W.) and presider. Deaths are recorded with the name of the deceased and serving minister. Obsequies are proper and appropriate duties in regard to the dead.

AN OLD FAMILY RECORD

Mr. J. H. W. Bonitz has received from the Bonitz family in Germany a book containing the record of the family since the year, 843 A.D., when the emperor granted three brothers a tract of land in the Hartz Mountains, then a vast wilderness. He was engaged yesterday in inscribing in the book the record of the family in America and will return it to Germany when he has finished it. The famous silver and gold mines of the Hartz Mountains were discovered by Mr. Bonitz's ancestors and his father, during his lifetime, was Superintendent of the mines for the imperial government.
