PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

We will be starting a new year in September with our first meeting on the second Tuesday at 7:00 PM. The Computer Interest Group starts at 6:00 PM. Anyone interested in leading the group or making suggestions for subjects to discuss, please let me know.

Our programs have been quite good the past two years, especially the "Genealogy 101" during the 2001-2002 year. This year we hope to have a good line up of programs to pique your interest. If anyone has any ideas for programs in the future please let Pete Davis know. He is our new VP for 2003-2005 and has the responsibility of arranging for programs. Beverly Tetterton has been a great help in this endeavor in the past.

Speaking of officers, the slate for this next two years is as follows:

President - Jim Edwards
Vice-president - Pete Davis
Secretary - Carolyn Corbett
Treasurer - Kay Berg
Member-At-Large - Joseph Shepard
Past President- Carole Weiss

If you have any questions or suggestions for improving our meetings, etc., please see one of the above.

I hope during the summer everyone made a big leap forward in finding more about your ancestors. The internet is getting better everyday in providing places where information can be found. You can even find sites with searchable data bases that are of great help. I belong to Ancestry.com, at a price, but it is most helpful. The LDS Family Search site is great too. The IGI is updated quite regularly. Just acknowledge the source and double check your data.

Another site I have found that is not genealogy related but has been a good source for computer operation and maintenance. That is the "Kim Komando" site. She is on the radio on Saturdays on WAAV 680 AM and has the web site. Just search for Kim Komando and you can find it. She also issues newsletters almost daily.

Happy hunting.

CHURCH OF ST. PAUL'S BAPTISMS AND BURIALS
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

Transcribed by James Edwards

Some early History:

St. Paul's Episcopal Parish was formed at the request of The Rt. Reverend Thomas Atkinson, Bishop of the Diocese of North Carolina, to accommodate the needs for worship of the black population, as well as the white population. Located on the corner of Fourth and Orange Streets, the building was purchased from the Protestant Methodist Church with the understanding that pews would be free, evening services would be offered, and the gallery would be designated for the black communicants.

May 5, 1848. Meeting of committee to form St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

June 9, 1858. First Vestry Meeting.

July 1862. Suspension of services due to yellow fever epidemic and Civil War.

1865. Establishment of school for African Americans, maintained by the Freedman's Bureau as provided by the General Convention.

Continued-Fourth in series from Book 1.

NEWSPAPER RESEARCH

by Carole Weiss

[After Carole Weiss gave a program on Newspaper Research at our November 2003 meeting, many people asked her for her notes. She has kindly provided the same to the Courier.]

Admit it. Researchers avoid newspaper research. We use the newspapers as a last resort or not at all. Yes, they may be difficult to read and they have no indices. However, newspapers may be your only possibility of securing information for certain time periods. Besides, you may benefit from checking them out even if you don't need an ancestor's marriage or death date.

The most obvious information black hole that newspaper research can fill is the twenty year period between the 1880 and the 1900 censuses. If an ancestor "disappeared" during this time, find the nearest newspaper published during those years. It is very helpful if a gravestone has the death date and that date is correct, of course.

The first time I searched for an obituary, it was for a second great grandfather who was married with children by the time of the 1850 Census and was not mentioned in any wills or deeds receiving anything from any relative. Thank goodness Absalom was considerate enough to live to the age of 79 and die June 22, 1893. I thought this would be easy—1893—lots of newspapers should be in existence by then! Not so. Newspapers were scarce even that close to the twentieth century, and some were published daily, others weekly. However, in Brunswick County, the Southport Leader had just begun to be published. Since our local history room did not have microfilms for this paper, I went to Raleigh, where indeed I did find Absalom's obit in the July 6, 1893 paper. Take notice of the time difference between the event and when it appeared in the local paper. To my surprise, the article was much longer than I had expected. I was so excited thinking I had hit the jackpot. Alas, it was not the custom in those days to mention the deceased's parents. What a bummer! Worse yet, instead of answering my question about his parentage, it produced more questions. Much to my initial dismay, it stated that he had been born in Northwest Brunswick County. Now that's not what Granddaddy had told me. Sometime after the initial disappointment and shock subsided, this incident became an epiphany for me, turning me into a firm believer in newspaper research. Yes, it did dispute Granddaddy's information, but it did give me clues and direction. Best of all, it gave me a more complete picture of this elusive grandparent.

Thereafter, I went to the library with a list of birth, death and marriage dates to search. In the Fayetteville Observer for August 1893, I found that my aunt was correct in telling me that my paternal great grandfather was killed in the building of Rockfish Bridge. The newspaper gave a full account of the accident and its victims, which made a wonderful addition to my family history. Recently, in the Morning Star of January 9, 1898, I found an account of a great grandfather's accidental death in Pender County, which had the most information yet found on this ancestor.

Before states were required to keep vital records, which in North Carolina was 1913, newspapers contained this valuable information. Censuses can give us a snapshot every ten years, if we're lucky enough to find the families in every census, but we have other black holes between every one of those census years. For instance, another second great grandfather was buried in Oakdale Cemetery July 11, 1876. I know this not because there is a tombstone for him, but because those wonderful people at Oakdale kept hand written cards, which even gave the name of the owner of the plot. According to their card file, he was first buried in one section and later moved to another owned by his wife. Neither of these grandparents has a headstone. Armed with a death date, I humed to the NC Room and began reading with the July 11, 1876, paper. At the top of the first page was "DIED...CURTIS__In this city on Monday, the 10th of July, W.H. Curtis, aged 63 years." It only gave his address and that he would be buried at Oakdale. Hoping for more, I checked the next day's issue and found: "Sudden Death.Yesterday morning we published a notice in our column of the death of Mr. W. H. Curtis.Since the announcement appeared we learn that his death was very sudden. It seems that he was sitting in his chair at home... about 6 o'clock, Monday evening, when he was suddenly stricken with a spasm of the heart and died almost instantly. Deceased was on the streets the day previous, but had been complaining several days, being subject to disease of the heart." Always the unexpected! Recently while looking over that Xeroxed page my eyes fell on the article immediately beneath this last one. "Thermometer Record." Wilmington had a high of 88 degrees the day before, which was the day of the burial. According to a July 12 article, "There is no gainsaying the fact that the weather has been intensely warm in Wilmington during the last two or three weeks, and especially for the past three or four days. Perspiration has oozed from every pore in startling immensity and faces have been swabbed: with linen kerchiefs until they were brought to resemble a well-used dish-clout. The remark has also been very general that it was "the hottest weather and the mostest of it" ever known here.... Yesterday the thermometer at the Signal Station in this city only reached 94 degrees, being three degrees lower than on Monday." It had been 97 degrees the day my grandfather died! His branch of the family tree was no longer bare, it was in bloom.

Learning from this second discovery that it is wise to check several issues before and after the desired article is found, I hoped to find a little more on his wife Tabitha, who died in 1903. However, not all searches are fruitful, there was nothing but the basics in her death notice that appeared only once.

More than once a newspaper article has helped establish a correct date when several sources have varying dates. Twentieth century writings gave Revolutionary Soldier James Foy's death as 11 November & December 1822. Dear James lies in an unmarked grave in his family cemetery, where there are several other unidentified family members. At the Archives we found his obit in the Raleigh Register of December 13, 1822. James died on his plantation November 11, 1822 and his wife, Elizabeth, had died just twelve days before.

Newspapers also help establish the correct facts, so more information can be obtained, when there is a clerical, abstracting or typographical error in a book. In the NC Room, from Mrs. MacEachern's Pender County Gravestone Records I retrieved a great grandmother's death date of 24 June 1932. Wonderful! Papers were writing more lengthy obits then and I could get a death certificate. Immediately I pulled the Star News for June, 1932. After searching through all of June, July and August, I was stumped. Why wouldn't it be there? Either a trip to the courthouse in Burgaw for the death certificate or to the graveyard in the woods somewhere along HWY 421 near Hwy 53 was now a necessity. An easy choice. The date of death on her certificate was scribbled, but the 24" and the 1932 were correct. Okay, is that abbreviation June or January? At the bottom on the burial line was "1/25,... 1932" and below that was "Feb. 5, 1932." Aha! Back at the library, in the January paper was her obit.

Probably, the most important find for me occurred several years ago, while conferring with other researchers trying to establish a man's children. We had some information on him from several different sources i.e. Revolutionary Pension Record (in which he gave his birth as June 27, 1732), one researcher had a handwritten copy of a Bible record written by one of his great grandchildren and an article from The State magazine where a great great grandchild had been interviewed (his death was 1850 or 1854). No will, no deed, no gravestone had turned up for him or his wife. I really wanted to connect my known ancestor with this older man as there was good circumstantial evidence from their Pension Records, but nothing concrete. The 1840 Census of Bladen County, listed William Pridgen as a pensioner aged 112. Checking the entire Bladen County Census for males in the last age column, there were only two households with men in this age range--the Richard Cheshire household and the Elizabeth Johnson household. No Pridgen? Looking again at the Pensioner list, there was Richard Cheshire age 97. So, William was alive for the 1840 Census living in Elizabeth Johnson's household. The 1850 Census and the Mortality schedule produced no trace of this elderly veteran. Where did he go? So, I turned to the newspapers. A search through the entire years of 1854, 1852, and 1850 in Wilmington and Raleigh papers produced nothing. Luckily, providence intervened and Helen Sammons phoned me one day to tell me she had come across "that old man I was trying to find while abstracting Wilmington Newspapers! (Sharing our problem ancestors with other researchers can be fruitful too!) Helen's manuscript listed William's obit in an 1845 paper! Suspecting now, that there could have been a typographical error somewhere, I went back to that 1845 paper. In the Wilmington Chronicle of December 24, 1845, was the headline, "Extraordinary Longevity From the Fayetteville Observer." The article followed: "Died in Bladen County, N.C. on the 14" Oct. last, Mr. Wm. Pridgen, aged 123 years!! He entered his 124th year in June last. He volunteered to serve his country in the Continental Army of the Revolution and though then exempt by reason of his being over age, he served a full term in that war, and has received a Pension for many years past. He has lived to follow all his children to the grave, except one, an aged daughter. His grandchildren are aged people and he has left great grandchildren upwards of 40 years of age and great great grandchildren about 12 years of age. He retained his faculties till his death, except his sight, which he lost a few years ago. He was able to walk until a few days before his death, when attacked by fever, of which he died." From here I wanted to see the original source, but there are no copies of the Fayetteville Observer for that date to be found. However, from The North Carolinian (another Fayetteville Newspaper) 20 Dec 1845, p.3. "DIED..... In Bladen County, on the 14th October last, Mr. Wm. Pridgen, aged about 123. The deceased was a soldier in the Revolution, and served out the time for which he enlisted." Now it was clear. We must take William's own word for it that he was born in 1732. He died in 1845, making him 113 years old. Someone in the Fayetteville paper office made a typo and printed 123 instead of 113. And so this error was repeated over and over. I looked through later issues for a correction, but never found one. As far as his grandchildren remembering his death date---- 1845, 1854, it's easy to make a mistake in spoken or written words passed on many years after the fact. Remember the childhood game of "Gossip?" Besides, can you remember the exact year of your grandparents' deaths?

Newspapers of long ago, like newspapers now have typographical errors. Use their information like all pieces of information----as part of a complete picture. Use them to confirm or refute questionable facts. After all, the account was written a lot closer to the time of the event than other accounts that were told and retold or written about many years later.

Try to think of newspapers as fertilizer for your family tree. You can use them to help your tree bloom and maybe even bear fruit. Be patient and systematic, as with all of your research, and keep the following in mind:

- There may be a considerable amount of time between the event and when it appears in a newspaper;
- The date you have may not be the correct date, check for variations, just like the spelling variations with surnames;
- Check all possible newspapers. The evening edition may carry an article the morning edition didn't or may have more details-likewise for different papers in the same town or state;
- Check the fine print for an original source newspaper, then check the original source. ie. "from the Fayetteville Observer;" and,
- Check several issues before and beyond the issue in which the desired article appears for corrections or follow up articles.

Hopefully, you are now convinced that researching newspapers can be fruitful and fun. Where else could you find out that your maternal grandmother wore a Copenhagen blue suit and carried bride's roses when she married your granddaddy?
