SOCIETY NEWS

The editors wish to acknowledge Kay Berg for the monumental task of indexing the four Clarendon Couriers published in 2005 and included in the Fall 2005 edition. She undertook this laborious project and accomplished it in a timely manner. It makes our Journal much more usable for our members. Thank you, Kay!

Also, thank you to Helen Sammons, Joseph Sheppard, Jim Edwards, Stephen Carroll Pearsall and Beverly Tetterton for their contributions to this Courier.

The May Picnic will be held May 6, 2006, at 10:30 a.m. at the Northeast Branch of the New Hanover County Library, located on Military Cutoff Road. A noted genealogist, Margaret Gentges, who lives in Northern Virginia, will be our guest speaker. Check out her website: <http://www.mindspring.com/~mgentges/>. Plan to attend this interesting program and to enjoy fellowship with other genealogists.

The schedule of meetings for 2006-2007 are: September 16, 2006; November 18, 2006; January 20, 2007; March 17, 2007 and May 19, 2007. All are on Saturdays and will commence at 2:00 p.m. Meeting places will be announced.

The editors are always interested in material for the Courier. If you have an unpublished article, please submit it to one of the editors for consideration for this journal.

ABANDONED CEMETERIES

With the building boom going great guns all over the State of North Carolina, developers are buying up farm and forest lands for housing subdivisions and business parks at a rapid rate. They often don't know they've also bought a family cemetery until a few graves are discovered during the construction phase of their projects.

Existing North Carolina state law requires county governments to keep a list of the public and abandoned cemeteries within their boundaries and are authorized to take possession and control of all such public cemeteries. Problems have arisen, in part, because the law does not define exactly what constitutes an "abandoned" cemetery. A developer is supposed to give 30 days notice before removing caskets or other remains from a site, allowing for the deceased person's relatives to be notified. The developer must have permission from a local government to remove the remains and re-inter them in a suitable location or cemetery. Most public officials think the 30 day period is too short, because, in some cases the decedent's relatives live in another state and/or are completely unaware of the grave site.

When the legislation was passed in 1980, it was estimated that there were about 10,000 abandoned cemeteries in the state. Most knowledgeable individuals think the number has risen in the intervening years. However, no one really knows because efforts to collect data have been hampered by staff and budget cuts, most notably to the Office of Archives and History, which started to collect cemetery information in 1984.

Many legislators have voiced their belief that there is enough confusion and frustration over the current rules and regulations governing the movement and preservation of abandoned burial sites to demand a revision of the existing state law. A recently convened House Committee plans to look at how to handle dilapidated grave sites threatened by development crowding out the once rural and pristine locations.

Beverly Tetterton has been the New Hanover cemetery survey coordinator since Billy McEachern died in 1982. Mrs. McEachern recorded many of the rural cemeteries in eleven volumes that cover New Hanover, Pender, Bladen, Sampson and Duplin counties. Over the years, Tetterton has worked with citizens who report suspicious activity around abandoned cemeteries. She records the location and condition of the graveyard. The survey is then filed locally in the county library and in Raleigh. In the past she has had to call the New Hanover County sheriffs office stop the bulldozers and has worked with the State Archaeology Office based at Fort Fisher to determine grave sites.

About ten years ago, Christine Neal, who works in the New Hanover County Engineering Department, was given the job to follow North Carolina law regarding the county's abandoned cemeteries. She has been an incredible champion for the dearly departed. Neal says, "New Hanover County has over 100 cemeteries within its very small boundaries and we have been dealing with this issue for years. We amended our zoning and subdivision regulations to address cemeteries and the proper procedures for having their boundaries delineated out on the ground. Not to mention, defining the property owners' responsibilities with regards to maintenance of these sites, now and in the future. This has become a rather odd passion of mine and I am so glad to see the state taking the lead on this issue now.

When a development, with a known cemetery on it, comes into our planning department for review, my knowledge of cemeteries and their histories becomes part of that review process. That is, when we are made aware of their existence, on these sites, beforehand. Other times, we are usually the horse, behind a cart, already in motion and then it becomes a less friendly issue between the county and the developer, with regards to regulations. I always encourage the developers to work around the graves, rather than relocate them. Unfortunately, the current regulations allow them to ask permission of the governing bodies and that issue is subject to their discretion. While New Hanover has an unwritten policy of getting employee recommendations for these removals, for the most part, it is solely up to the desecration of the board and I for one, would like to see the state dictate language that would only permit this to happen, for the good of the community (roads, utility lines, etc., and only if necessary) and not for a few profit dollars.

To date, New Hanover County has five cemeteries that they maintain. Four were taken over based on a definition of "abandonment," that I had our county attorney establish years ago. To date, I have two different cemeteries that are now being incorporated into on-going subdivision plans, rather than having the graves relocated. We encourage and work directly with developers, to prevent these graves and their history, from being destroyed. History makes Wilmington and New Hanover County a wonderful place to live and I would hate to see anything happen to any of our history, or any of its original settlers. Rest in peace, should mean just that."

A LOCAL ABANDONED CEMETERY

In the spring of 2005, several people from Rocky Point met at Paul's Restaurant. The objective was to locate an old cemetery located on the Cameron Tract on Ivershield Road (Country Road #1516). Upon arrival at the end of the country road, the woods were entered from the south. After about ten minutes, the cemetery was located in an easterly direction about 300 yards from the end of the state maintained road. One of the members of the group stated that when he was a young boy, there was perhaps 10 or 12 grave sites. Bricks outlined several of the edges of the grave sites. Almost all of the tops were absent. Cows at one time had roamed the property and destroyed the graveyard. The cemetery appeared to be about 100 feet by 100 feet because several of the grave sites were some distance apart. There were several markers overturned, burrowed deep in the ground and covered with growth and dirt from years of neglect.

The one salvageable grave marker was that of Elizabeth Maria Hill. Her tombstone inscription reads in part:

"Here lies the remains of ever rested Mother of Rebecca Elizabeth Maria Hill beloved wife of
W. H. Hill
She died December 14, 1806
aged 51 years
Her filial piety----(illegible)... and conjugal and material virtues were exemplary.
She was an affectionate relation and a steady friend."

Subsequent research reveals that Mrs. William Henry Hill died on 14 December 1806. William Henry Hill, son of William Hill (native of Boston) and Margaret Moore (daughter of Nathaniel Moore of Brunswick County), married Elizabeth Maria Ashe, daughter of General John Ashe and Mary Rebecca Moore. William Henry Hill was first married to Elizabeth Nash, daughter of Governor Abner Nash. By his first marriage, William Henry Hill had a son, William Henry Hill, (Jr.) By his second marriage, he had Anna Hill and Julia Rebecca Hill. William Henry Hill, Jr. married Eliza Marshall. Anna Hill married Charles J. Wright and Julia Rebecca Hill married Ezekiel Hall.

In Craven County, NC, there is a marriage bond for a William Henry Hill and an Elizabeth Moore. This bond is dated 21 Apr 1788. In the New Hanover County records, there is a marriage contract dated 1788 between William Hill and Elizabeth Moore, widow, of Craven County. The bondsman was John Hill. It is thought that Elizabeth Nash may have been married to James Moore. In Craven County, there exists a marriage bond between Elizabeth Nash and James Moore dated 20 May 1782. There is a marriage bond for William Henry Hill and Elizabeth Ashe in Orange County NC, dated 29 Aug 1792. William Henry Hill was referred to as the "late" in a marriage contract in New Hanover County between Ann Hill, daughter, and Charles Wright, dated 4 Feb 1813.

Early plantations in the particular of Rocky Point, where the cemetery is located, were Red Hill Plantation (part of tract called Moorefields), Green Hill Plantation (part of tract called Moorefields) and to the north Moseley Hall. Green Hill Plantation was the residence of General John Ashe. As early as 1798, one James Moore deeded to William Henry Hill, land called and known by the name of Red Hill Plantation on Rocky Point.

William Henry Hill was born in Brunswick County on May 1, 1767. He was the grandson of Nathaniel Moore, great grandson of Governor James Moore and a descendant of Sir John Yeamans, Governor of North Carolina 1665-74. He attended public schools in Boston, MA; engaged in agricultural pursuits; studied law in Boston; was admitted to the bar and practiced in Wilmington and was appointed United States district attorney for North Carolina by President Washington in 1790. He was a member of the State Senate in 1794-1795 from the Wilmington district and was elected as a Federalist to the Sixth and Seventh Congresses (March 4, 1799-March 3, 1803). He was appointed judge of the United States District Court for the District of North Carolina by President John Adams at the close of his term but the designation was withdrawn by President Thomas Jefferson. William Henry Hill returned to his estate near Wilmington, NC where he engaged in agricultural pursuits until his death there in 1809. He was interred in the family burial ground on his estate, "Hilton," near Wilmington and subsequently was reinterred in Oakdale Cemetery in Wilmington.

Note: The final resting place of Eliza Maria Ashe Hill cemetery has not been recorded in any of the gravestone books. Eliza Ashe Hill has been inadvertently included on page 46 of Gravestone Records, Vol. XI, New Hanover County, compiled by Leora H. McEachern, Ruth S. Walker and Mae B. Graves in 1980. The cemetery should not be confused with the Ashe family burying ground which is further up the Northeast River.

An Important Message from the Society's Secretary

Carolyn Corbett, our Society's secretary wishes to pass on the following information:

Legislation was proposed in Congress in January of 2004 that seeks to restrict public access to birth certificates. This bill (H.R. 10) is a response to the threat of terrorism, but the ramifications are wide spread. Access to certified birth certificates could be barred up to 100 years and you may not be a close enough relative to obtain one.

The Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Act of 2004 was signed into law. The way the bill is worded, it could also limit our access to vital record information for genealogical purposes.

A movement has been underway to get the wording in the bill adjusted by inserting the following language as a new subsection:

"Shall not require a state of change its law or practice with respect to public access to (i) non-certified copies of birth certificates or to (ii) birth certificates or birth records once a period of 100 years has elapsed from the date of creation of the certificate or record."

One provision in the bill reads: "Issuance to Family Members - Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Health & Human Services and the States, shall establish minimum standards for issuance of a birth certificate to specific family members, their authorized representatives, and others who demonstrate that the certificate is needed for the protection of the requestor's personal or property rights."

The National Genealogical Society, the Federation of Genealogical Societies and the Association of Professional Genealogists are very concerned. Not only will this bill possibly affect our ability to do genealogical research, it will affect research for medical reasons

How can we protect public access to vital records? We must be diligent, keeping abreast of the laws that might affect our ability to do research. We must be willing to speak out if needed. Ideally it would be up to each state and/or county to govern their records. There are some states which have closed their records already.

Belfont Plantation

On the upper North West Cape Fear River, two miles above Elizabethtown, NC, is Bellefont plantation, former home of Colonel Hugh Waddell and his wife, Mary Haynes.

On Bellefont, is buried the distinguished Lieutenant Colonel Webster, Lord Cornwallis' favorite officer, who was wounded at the Battle of Guilford Court House in 1781. Apparently, he died enroute to Wilmington, while retreating with the British armies.

In 1810, a party of gentlemen, which included Judge John D. Toomer and the Honorable Alfred Moore, inquired where Webster was buried. An aged slave named Birdee Lisburn, who had belonged to Colonel Waddell and was named after Waddell's birthplace in Ireland, pointed out the grave to the gentlemen since he had witnessed Webster's funeral. The grave was opened and upon removing the decayed lid of the coffin, there lay the British officer hero, perfect for an instant in the sight of all, but in a moment there was only a handful of dust.

- Statement of Hon. John D. Toomer and Hon. Alfred Moore.
in the Bill Reaves File, "Honorable Alfred Moore."

ONE LAST WORD...

"Open wide ye golden gates
That lead to the heavenly shore.
Our father suffered in passing through
And Mother weighs much more.

-Epitaph in England, source unknown
